Fairly Traded Hand Woven Textiles From Around the World

Circle of the Sun is an environmentally conscious organization, working to improve the lives of indigenous communities throughout the world. Our vision is to empower communities, where a farming way of life is strong, through the direct purchase of the handmade crafts of that region. Textiles & handicrafts always accompany farming communities as a form of cultural expression, as well as an income source.

In buying the textiles & handicrafts produced by these people, Circle of the Sun helps them to see beyond the daily task of meeting their immediate needs, and look to bigger picture ways of making their lives more sustainable. We spend time each year living and working directly with weavers and craftspeople in village cooperatives to:

- Establish Fair-Trade relationships that benefit the craftspeople directly.
- Source the finest quality in totally unique, native, artisan goods.
- Improve the economic base in remote and tribal cultures.
- Provide long term, sustainable development to the crafters we support.

Handwoven Alpaca

Hand Woven in the Bolivian Andes, these items are made of 100% pure Alpaca fiber. The Alpaca grow fur in an amazing 22 natural shades of color. The tones & colors shown here are natural without any dyes. Alpaca live long healthy lives, they roam freely by day & are protected at night. Their fur is collected each spring by hand as a part of a natural shedding. The fibers are superior to wool in strength & warmth and are hypoallergenic. The weaves & designs are original creations of the indigenous communities of the Andes. Our relationship with our artisan partners is long term. We seek to strengthen their lives in whatever ways possible with Sustainable Development through FAIR TRADE.

Espíritus del Ande Incense

Espíritus del Ande Incense is a 100% natural product, hand crafted from plants & resins native to The Andes Mountains. The main ingredients: Palo Santo & Wiracoya are known throughout the land as medicines for cleansing, purification, & good fortune. The lighting of the incense represents our intention and prayer, being released into the energy field to come forth & manifest.

They are produced with loving hands, carefully holding a meditative space while they blend and shape the sticks. They are then dried and packaged in handmade boxes. They are made by local natives in Southern Peru, it is a Fair Trade project with people receiving a living wage & working in a cooperative environment. The individual blends offer a diversity of scents & energetics. The Palo Santo & Wiracoya shown here have been used for thousands of years to promote spiritual & physical health. They are both native to the Andes Mountains.
